

For immediate release April 20, 2011

The Towner Management Group Begins 20th Anniversary Celebration

With a cocktail party for employees and visiting dignitaries this past weekend at its St. James House headquarters, The Towner Management Group (TMG) continued what promises to be an eventful 20th anniversary year. The year started on April 3rd with a church service at the historic St. James Parish Church in Holetown that was attended by staff, family and friends.

TMG, the largest captive and international business entity manager in Barbados, started operations on April 1, 1991. "We strive to consistently offer service that exceeds expectations," said Christopher J.N. Towner, the company's founder and chairperson. TMG has grown from a seedling into an international management presence, which includes an increasingly influential U.S.-based captive management business. Towner also heads a handful of other management and financial companies. "We hope to continue exceeding our clients' expectations for another 20 years."

The opening celebration, which was covered by Barbados' broadcast and print media, included the country's Minister with responsibility for International Business and International Transportation, George Hutson, among its guests. A twelve-page special insert followed in The Nation's Sunday Sun newspaper.

"Our staff is very important to us and is nothing less than the focal point of our organization," says Ricardo O. Knight, TMG's president and the longest tenured executive next to the founder. We understand that our well trained, qualified and motivated staff is vital to our success as an international service company, as well as the success of the companies we serve."

TMG will continue to host events throughout the year for its employees and their families, as well as special events at various industry conferences.

To learn more about how we provide our clients with alternative risk solutions that meet their diverse needs, don't hesitate to contact us.

At TMG, count on our experience, independence and expertise to help guide your business.